The Funds are actively managed by DJE and, where a benchmark index is indicated, without reference to it. The presented charts and tables concerning performance are based on our own calculations according to the gross performance (BVI) method² and illustrate past development. Past performance is not indicative for future returns. The BVI method takes into account all costs incurred at the fund level (e.g. management fees), the net performance and the issue fee. Additional individual costs may be incurred at the customer level (e.g. custodian fees, commission and other charges). Model calculation (net): an investor wishes to purchase shares for Euro 1,000. With a maximum issue surcharge of 0.00% , he has to spend a one-off amount of Euro 0.00 when making the purchase. In addition, there may be custodian costs that reduce performance. The custodian costs are decided by your bank's price list and service charges

Monthly Commentary

The European stock markets had a volatile start to August. Weak US labour market data at the beginning of the month gave rise to fears that the USA could slide into recession. In addition, a (moderate) key interest rate hike by the Bank of Japan jeopardised the usual interest rate differential business, the so-called yen carry trade. As a result, the Japanese share index Topix suffered a daily loss of -12.2%. The European stock markets also felt the impact and fell, albeit not as sharply. The situation calmed down again with better US economic data and a confirmation of interest rate cut expectations from the US Federal Reserve. In Europe, a positive signal came from the combined purchasing managers' index for services and manufacturing. This rose to 51.2 points in August (previous month: 50.2). This puts the index above the threshold value of 50 and signals a slightly expansive economy. However, the increase is solely attributable to the services component. As inflation in the eurozone fell to 2.2% in August (previous month: 2.6%), the markets are also anticipating a further interest rate cut by the European Central Bank. DJE - Europe gained 2.21% in this market environment. The fund benefited above all from sectors for which a falling interest rate environment is favourable, including real estate and insurance. The retail sector also made a positive contribution to the fund's performance. On the other hand, the fund's performance was negatively impacted by the basic materials (falling energy prices), automotive (weak sales figures and competitive pressure from China) and technology (some negative company figures and AI trend under observation) sectors. The fund management adjusted the allocation only moderately over the course of the month. Among other things, it increased the weighting of the healthcare, insurance and utilities sectors and reduced the energy and financial services sectors. At country level, Swiss stocks in particular were reduced and Dutch stocks were increased. The equity allocation remained almost stable at 98.78% (previous month: 98.96%).
