The Funds are actively managed by DJE and, where a benchmark index is indicated, without reference to it. The presented charts and tables concerning performance are based on our own calculations according to the gross performance (BVI) method² and illustrate past development. Past performance is not indicative for future returns. The BVI method takes into account all costs incurred at the fund level (e.g. management fees), the net performance and the issue fee. Additional individual costs may be incurred at the customer level (e.g. custodian fees, commission and other charges). Model calculation (net): an investor wishes to purchase shares for Euro 1,000. With a maximum issue surcharge of 0.00% , he has to spend a one-off amount of Euro 0.00 when making the purchase. In addition, there may be custodian costs that reduce performance. The custodian costs are decided by your bank's price list and service charges

Monthly Commentary

European stock markets performed predominantly positively in July, with the exception of the stock exchanges in Denmark, Holland, Norway and Sweden. While there was much international speculation about possible interest rate cuts by the US Federal Reserve, the European Central Bank announced that it would act "data-dependent". But the markets are also expecting further interest rate cuts in the eurozone in September, December and March 2024, even though inflation rose slightly to 2.6% in July compared to the previous month (2.5%). The interest rate cut expectations triggered a certain sector rotation: real estate, utilities, financial and industrial stocks were in demand worldwide, while technology and cyclical consumer stocks disappointed. The eurozone economy grew by 0.3% in the second quarter, mainly due to successful foreign trade. However, growth is unevenly distributed: the Spanish economy grew the most at 0.8%, followed by France at 0.3% and Italy at 0.2%. Germany, at the bottom of the list, shrank by -0.1%. The loss of purchasing power as a result of the high inflation rate and the still high interest rate level are slowing down consumption and investment activity. The purchasing managers' index for services, a meaningful indicator of the eurozone economy, fell from 50.9 to 50.1 points in July, which dampens hopes of a rapid economic recovery. The DJE - Europa fell by -0.36% in this market environment. In July, the fund was able to benefit primarily from the personal care, drugstore and food retail, construction & materials and real estate sectors. The latter two sectors in particular benefited from the increased expectations of interest rate cuts. On the other hand, the energy and automobile sectors in particular weighed on the fund's performance. Both sectors suffered from the economic slowdown, falling commodity prices (energy) and declining foreign demand (automobiles). In addition, the technology sector performed very poorly. On the one hand, the figures of individual companies were disappointing, and the entire sector suffered from the emerging doubts in the markets as to whether the enormous investments in artificial intelligence would pay off. The fund management only adjusted the portfolio moderately and increased the weighting of the industrial sector, among other things, and in return reduced the financial services sector, among other things. The country breakdown remained largely unchanged from the previous month. The fund's equity ratio fell slightly from 99.11% to 98.96%.
