The Funds are actively managed by DJE and, where a benchmark index is indicated, without reference to it. The presented charts and tables concerning performance are based on our own calculations according to the gross performance (BVI) method² and illustrate past development. Past performance is not indicative for future returns. The BVI method takes into account all costs incurred at the fund level (e.g. management fees), the net performance and the issue fee. Additional individual costs may be incurred at the customer level (e.g. custodian fees, commission and other charges). Model calculation (net): an investor wishes to purchase shares for Swiss Franc 1,000. With a maximum issue surcharge of 0.00%, he has to spend a one-off amount of Swiss Franc 0.00 when making the purchase. In addition, there may be custodian costs that reduce performance. The custodian costs are decided by your bank's price list and service charges

Investment Approach

High-dividend stocks are a source of recurring income, but their importance is often underestimated. In the long term, dividends often make the biggest contribution to stock portfolio performance, as reinvested dividends facilitate the compounding effect. This is why stocks with above-average dividend yields are the focus of the DJE - Dividende & Substanz fund. When selecting high dividend stocks, a stable, increasing dividend payment is more important than the absolute level of the current dividend yield. Historical data shows that high-dividend stocks can be more stable in difficult market phases relative to low-dividend stocks. Hence, dividends can act as a buffer to mitigate temporary capital losses. This is mainly because stable businesses with strong balance sheets and high dividend yields as well as protective entry barriers to their markets and products increase the chance of long-term investment success. The stock selection of the portfolio aims for an above-average dividend yield relative to the broader market; however, the fund may also invest in equities that do not currently pay a dividend.

Important selection criteria

Source: DJE Kapital AG. For illustration purposes only.

Opportunities

- + Participation in the growth opportunities of global equity markets independent of benchmark index specifications.
- + Dividends offer regular income potential in addition to possible share price gains and can thus mitigate possible price losses.
- + Attractive level of global dividend stocks.
- + Experienced fund manager with an approach based on fundamental, monetary and market analysis (FMM) that has proven itself since 1974.

Risks

- Share prices can fluctuate relatively strongly due to market, currency and individual value factors.
- Dividends are a voluntary payment by companies and therefore not guaranteed. They can rise, fall or be cancelled altogether.
- Currency risks due to a high foreign share in the portfolio.
- Previously proven investment approach does not guarantee future investment success.

Monthly Commentary

The major US share indices in particular made progress in November. The re-election of Donald Trump as President of the USA - and the possible consequences of this - dominated the markets in November. The US stock markets responded favourably to Trump's election victory and performed very well, including small and mid caps. However, the US equity markets were also supported by continued solid US economic data, including falling unemployment, increased consumer confidence and a significant rise in purchasing managers' indices: services from 54.9 to 56.0 points and manufacturing from 46.5 to 48.4 points. However, the latter is still below the threshold value of 50, which signals an expansionary economy. Another factor influencing the markets in the medium term was the change in key interest rate expectations in view of rising US inflation to 2.6% (previous month: 2.4%) compared to the same month of the previous year. The markets therefore reduced their expectations of further interest rate cuts. The situation is different in the eurozone, where the markets expect further interest rate cuts by the ECB in the near future in view of the continuing economic weakness and a moderate inflation rate of 2.0% (previous month: 1.7%). In this market environment, the DJE - Dividende & Substanz rose by 2.60%. (US) financial and technology stocks were particularly sought after worldwide. The strongest gains were recorded by the consumer discretionary sector. On the other hand, commodities and healthcare stocks underperformed the market. The fund management adjusted the portfolio slightly over the course of the month. The weighting of the financial services providers, credit institutions, industrials and healthcare sectors was increased. In return, the fund management reduced the technology and energy sectors. As a result of the adjustments, the investment ratio rose from 95.37% to 97.12%. Liquidity fell accordingly to 2.88%.
