The Funds are actively managed by DJE and, where a benchmark index is indicated, without reference to it. The presented charts and tables concerning performance are based on our own calculations according to the gross performance (BVI) method² and illustrate past development. Past performance is not indicative for future returns. The BVI method takes into account all costs incurred at the fund level (e.g. management fees), the net performance and the issue fee. Additional individual costs may be incurred at the customer level (e.g. custodian fees, commission and other charges). Model calculation (net): an investor wishes to purchase shares for Euro 1,000. With a maximum issue surcharge of 2.00%, he has to spend a one-off amount of Euro 20.00 when making the purchase. In addition, there may be custodian costs that reduce performance. The custodian costs are decided by your bank's price list and service charges

Investment Approach

DJE - Zins Global invests worldwide in a broadly diversified portfolio of high-quality government and corporate bonds. High-yield and emerging market bonds can be added. The selection of individual bonds depends largely on a fundamental assessment of the debtor's solvency and the corresponding yield valuation. The fund management emphasises a balanced mix of bonds with an attractive risk/reward ratio and strives to achieve an appropriate return. The currency risk of securities not denominated in Euro can be partially or fully hedged depending on the market situation. The fund thus offers easy access to the global bond market and can serve as a basic investment.

Monthly Commentary

October was an unpleasant month for the bond markets. Under the impression of the interest rate turnaround initiated in the US, the markets focussed on US economic data. And some of the surprises were positive: the US labour market proved to be robust with more new jobs created than in August and September and a falling unemployment rate. In addition, the Purchasing Managers' Index for services rose unexpectedly sharply from 51.5 to 54.9 points, indicating expansion. However, with the improved economic outlook, investors also scaled back their expectations of further rapid interest rate cuts by the US Federal Reserve (Fed). The US inflation data reinforced this development. Although the inflation rate fell to 2.4% in September (previous month: 2.5%), core inflation (excluding food and energy) rose from 3.2% to 3.3% - year-on-year data in each case. The reduced key interest rate expectations put pressure on the bond markets in particular. Added to this were the increasingly favourable prospects of a Republican victory in both the US presidential and congressional elections, which would increase the likelihood of fiscal stimulus in the US. As a result, the bond markets experienced their biggest monthly losses since September 2022, with yields on 10-year US government bonds rising by 52 basis points to 4.30% and 2-year US Treasuries by 54 basis points to 4.18%. In Europe, government bonds also lost ground, but to a much lesser extent. At 2.39%, 10-year German government bonds yielded 27 basis points higher and 2-year bonds yielded 19 basis points higher at 2.26%. This was due to the ECB's (generally expected) key interest rate cut of 25 basis points to 3.25% on the one hand and the continuing economic downturn on the other. Although the combined purchasing managers' index for services and manufacturing in the eurozone rose marginally from 49.6 to 49.7 points in October, it remains in contractionary territory below the threshold value of 50 and therefore still does not signal an economic turnaround for the better. Accordingly, investors expect the ECB to cut key interest rates further. The development of corporate bonds showed a mixed picture: High-quality and high-yield US securities fell. Their yields rose by 42 and 29 basis points to 5.14% and 7.28% respectively. In contrast, the yield on high-quality European securities rose by only 10 basis points to 3.31%, and high-yield European bonds were 4 basis points lower at 5.90%. In this market environment, the DJE - Zins Global fell by -0.39%. On the one hand, the fund benefited from slightly falling credit premium on European high-yield bonds and an appreciating US dollar. On the other hand, the fund was unable to escape the broad rise in yields, particularly at the long end of the yield curve. Over the course of the month, the fund management reinvested a maturing corporate bond from the technology sector in a security from the same issuer with a longer term. It also added to a position in the chemicals sector. Short-dated US Treasuries were also acquired in order to park liquidity. On the other hand, it reduced a position in the mining sector and sold a position in the financial services sector. Polish government bonds were also sold as the zloty depreciated against the euro. As a result of the adjustments, the bond ratio rose slightly from 91.14% to 92.86%. The modified duration (including cash and derivatives) fell from 3.82% to 3.14%. The currency hedge against the US dollar was cancelled.
