Investment Manager's Comment

The big stock market party in the US continued in November despite or thanks to the election of D. Trump as president. A Conference Board Consumer Survey in November revealed that almost 60% believe that the stock market will continue to rise over the next twelve months. Not even during the dotcom mania did this figure rise above 50%. Due to the high valuations and our fundamental equity analysis, we are significantly underweight in the Land of the Free and continued to underperform in November. We are currently finding value or unpopular stocks in emerging markets or defensive sectors. We took advantage of the rally in US equities to sell Booking with a gain of 115%. Instead, we have added shares in the British company B&M European Value Retail S.A. This fast-growing company operates general merchandise and food stores in the UK and France.
