Review

After the strongest monthly performance of the year in November, equities moderately performed below European and Swiss markets in December, reflecting concerns that they might have run ahead of themselves. In contrast, as a small relief, European inflation fell close to the European Central Bank's (ECB) 2% target, while the Swiss National Bank had already cut interest rates, with some lagged benefits for both stock markets. In December, the JSS Sustainable Equity - Europe underperformed its reference index. This was mainly the result of negative stock selection. The best contributors in December were Diageo, UMG and Astrazeneca, while Ashtead, Nordea and Berkeley contributed negatively. Diageo shares recovered after investor sentiment improved, as it became clear that lower demand was industry-wide rather than company specific and we see the first signs of improvement appear. Meanwhile, Ashtead reported lower-than-expected results, and announced its intention to change its listing to the US. The announcement of a share buyback was not enough to offset the negativity.

Outlook

While we expect the US economy to remain strong at the beginning of 2025, we see the risk of deteriorating sentiment as markets might shift focus to tariff disputes. For European and Swiss exporters, US tariffs represent a clear threat. Overall, the environment for equities remains challenging, further stressing the need for careful selection. We continue our search for companies that generate a high return on capital employed, with a reasonable path for growth and management teams that understand capital allocation. We try to obtain these stakes at prices that reflect upside to our assessment of long-term intrinsic value. We aim to be long-term owners of the businesses we buy so they can compound their earnings and thereby contribute to our returns. In December, we added a position in Lonza to the portfolio. This company in the contract development and manufacturing organisation (CDMO) space is well positioned to capitalise on rising demand for CDMO services in biologics and cell and gene therapy. With a new CEO in place, the company is divesting its capsule business.
