Fund Portrait

The JSS Sustainable Bond CHF aims to deliver a steady yield while maintaining a balanced risk diversification and optimal liquidity. To achieve this, the sub-fund invests globally, exclusively in debt instruments denominated in Swiss francs and issued by countries, organisations and companies that contribute to the creation of a sustainable economy. It will also systematically integrate financially-material ESG aspects throughout the entire investment process, in order to avoid controversial exposures, mitigate ESG risks and harness opportunities. In addition, the sub-fund can also invest in equities acquired through conversion or exercise of options and hold liquidity. The Sub-Fund is actively managed without replicating any benchmark. However, the Sub-Fund is managed with reference to SBI Foreign AAA-BBB TR Index (the "Benchmark").

Review

Swiss inflation fell more than expected to 1.1% in August. While this seems to be comfortably in the middle of the inflation range of the SNB, the details of the inflation report are more worrying: most importantly, CPI ex rent declined to only 0.4% year-on-year. This highlights the risks that inflation is falling too much again. GDP growth surprised positively in the second quarter. Part of that is due to special effects like very strong exports in the pharma sector that are unlikely to be repeated. However, the latest purchasing manager indices and the KOF leading indicator have increased again, pointing to a more solid growth environment than the one in the euro area. The 10-year CHF swap rates ended the reporting period at 0.74%, 7 basis points lower than at the end of the previous month. The duration was kept neutral and had no impact on the relative performance. The sector allocation influenced the portfolio positive, while the security selection had a negative impact.

Outlook

We expect a 25 bps cut by the SNB in September to be followed by two additional cuts in the coming 12 months to counter further upward pressure on the Swiss franc. While a 50 bps cut would be compatible with the inflation outlook, it seems odd from a growth perspective. We rather see a gradual reduction of the policy rate combined with FX interventions at a later stage should the upward pressure on the Swiss franc continue. The reduction of the unrounded mortgage reference rate that was published earlier this week is another risk that inflation might fall further next year. At 1.67%, the rate is not that far away from 1.63% – a point at which tenants can ask for a reduction of their rent. This would lead to a further decline of headline inflation. The duration of the portfolio will be kept neutral to slightly shorter. The overweight in corporate bonds is maintained. Government bonds remain on an underweight accordingly.
