Fund Portrait

The JSS Sustainable Equity – Green Planet seeks to achieve long-term capital appreciation through global investments in equities of companies with revenues from products and services that are contributing to green solutions. The objective is to invest in a portfolio of companies of which the average share of «Green» revenues to total revenues is 30% across the portfolio. These companies may be characterised by their contribution to improving water, soil and air quality, preserving biodiversity or fighting against climate change. The sub-fund mainly invests in four areas including ecosystem protection, resource efficiency, new energies and smart mobility. To align the sub-Fund with the «Do No Significant Harm» principles, the eligible investment universe as defined by the proprietary JSS sustainability matrix avoids firms on the exclusion list as well as industry laggards and firms with weak ESG credentials. The Sub-Fund is actively managed without replicating any benchmark. The Sub-Fund is managed without reference to any benchmark.

Review

Global markets were strong in November driven by US mega caps, IT, and financials, with the outcome of the US election setting the tone for equity markets for 2025. America First, tariffs, and reshoring are expected to be key drivers. Structural green themes such as clean water, pollution reduction, electrification and automation should continue to accelerate, despite the change in administration. Speculative clean technologies (hydrogen, offshore wind, residential solar) may face risks from new US regulations, but the Green Planet strategy has no significant exposure to these sectors. As a result, the fund outperformed the Morningstar Ecology category for the month. In November, we increased our exposure to the electrification theme (GE Vernova, Schneider Electric), following strong quarterly earnings. We also shifted our electric vehicle positioning from China to the US, reducing BYD and increasing Tesla. The main positive contributors to performance for the month were Republic Services, Clean Harbors and PTC. The main detractors were Tetra Tech, Onto Innovation and Veolia.

Outlook

As companies and governments pursue net-zero goals and pollution reduction, we expect continued investment in the green transition, driven by several key trends. Advances in sustainable technologies, particularly in water treatment, electrification efficiency and improved industrial processes, will create new growth opportunities, while the promotion of a circular economy will foster innovative business models. Clean energy affordability remains critical, as the falling cost of renewable technologies will improve access for consumers and businesses alike. In addition, ongoing geopolitical tensions will reinforce the need for a deep understanding of supply chain dynamics; companies that adapt to the realities of deglobalisation are likely to become industry leaders. The Green Planet Fund is well positioned to capitalise on multiple environmental opportunities across four main themes: ecosystem protection, resource efficiency, smart mobility and future energies. Across these themes, the fund aims to build a diversified global equity portfolio with significant long-term growth potential.
