Review

Paccar was strong after posting quarterly sales and earnings above consensus and a plan to expand its manufacturing capacity globally. Gilead continued its positive trajectory driven by promising pipeline on preventive HIV treatment, lenacapavir a twice a year injectable solution. ADP posted solid results above the market expectations and lifted its guidance. Merck reported revenues and earnings ahead of expectations but lowered its guidance due to weak China demand. Michelin reported quarterly revenues slightly below consensus and cut its guidance due to lower volumes. Microchip Technology was under pressure during the month due to demand slowdown in microchip segment. The previously entered covered call on Schneider Electric was executed at maturity and the portfolio position exited. At the end of the month, we increased Publicis to target weight. The investment case was reaffirmed after the company reported quarterly revenue growth ahead of consensus and gaining market share versus its peers.

Outlook

October saw another batch of surprisingly strong US data, suggesting that the domestic cycle remains on a robust trajectory. Both retail sales and ISM services surprised on the upside. Consumer sentiment was positive and the labour market continues to show resilience. The strength of economic activity and somewhat higher-than-expected inflation rates have led the market to reprice US policy rate expectations. As a result, expectations of a rate cut have moderated considerably compared with a month ago. Activity in the euro area remains weaker than in the US, particularly in the manufacturing sector, although recent soft data have indicated some improvement. In Germany, both business climate and consumer confidence were slightly better than expected. The Equity Income strategy remains well positioned in this environment of uncertainty with a focus on quality companies with a strong balance sheet, good operating cash flows as well as dividend visibility.
