Fund Portrait

The JSS Sustainable Bond – Emerging Markets Corporate IG aims to achieve attractive returns in excess of the benchmark through the cycle. To achieve this, the sub-fund invests globally in the Emerging Market corporate bond market, predominantly in bonds issued in US Dollars. The strategy follows a conservative philosophy, focusing on the high credit quality segment of the market. Therefore, the sub-fund invests at least 70% of the assets in investment grade securities. It will also systematically integrate financially-material ESG aspects throughout the entire investment process, in order to avoid controversial exposures, mitigate ESG risks and harness opportunities.

The Sub-Fund is actively managed without replicating any benchmark. However, the Sub-Fund is managed with reference to JPM Corporate Broad EMBI Diversified High Grade Index (the “Benchmark”).

JSS Sust. Bond - Emerging Markets Corporate IG P EUR dist hedged

Review

The JSS Sustainable Bond – Emerging Markets IG fund returned -1.37% in October, broadly in line with the benchmark. The negative performance was primarily driven by a substantial rise in US Treasury yields. Despite the US Federal Reserve's 50 bps rate cut in September, strong US economic data and shift in expectations for the US elections toward a potential Republican sweep – suggesting higher future US fiscal spending and increased uncertainty over the fiscal path – pushed US Treasury yields up by more than 50 bps in October. Amid this backdrop, EM corporate credit was resilient, with credit spreads tightening across the regions and high-yield continuing to outperform investment-grade corporates. The EM primary market remained active in October with corporate issuance well above the five-year average for the month. With the rise in US Treasury yields, monthly flows to EM hard currency bond funds turned negative. Some fund overweight positions (e.g. in Saudi Arabia, South Africa, Mexico, Qatar and Malaysia) positively contributed to the fund's performance.

Outlook

We expect the outcome of the US elections, with Donald Trump's win and a likely Republican sweep, to weigh on emerging markets performance. US rates are likely to continue driving EM credit performance in the coming months. Sustained higher rates could also delay a pivot toward EM and negatively impact EM flows. Given the inflationary measures Donald Trump might enact early in his term, including tariffs and protectionist policies, we anticipate a divergence in performance across various EM countries and sectors in the near term. While stronger US growth may support valuations, certain countries and sectors remain more vulnerable to the new administration's policies. In anticipation of this outcome, we had reduced the long end duration on the fund and, from a credit perspective, maintained overweight positions in countries that could be negatively affected by potential tariffs and protectionist measures (e.g. China, Mexico, South Korea). As of the end of October, the fund had a yield to worst of 5.6%, a duration of 5.2 years, and an average rating of BBB+.
