Fund Portrait

The JSS Bond - USD High Yield aims to deliver the highest total return. To achieve this, the sub-fund invests globally (including in emerging markets) in USD-denominated debt securities with non-investment grade rating. A non-investment grade rating is understood to be a rating lower than BBB- (Standard & Poor's) or Baa3 (Moody's). "Emerging markets" are generally defined as the markets of countries that are developing into modern industrial economies and therefore have high growth potential but also increased risk. The sub-fund may also invest up to 15%, directly or indirectly, in different equity securities such as ordinary and preferred shares.

The Sub-Fund is actively managed without replicating any benchmark. However, the Sub-Fund is managed with reference to Bloomberg U.S. Corporate High Yield 2% Issuer Capped TR Index (the "Benchmark").

Review

The high yield bond market returned 1.94% in July, with the wirelines, office REITs, and cable satellite sectors generating the strongest returns. By credit rating, the BB-rated sector returned 1.55%, the B-rated sector returned 1.77%, and the CCC-rated sector returned 3.64% for the month. Corporate credit quality remains solid, but higher interest rates and persistently high inflation are pressuring some balance sheets. According to JP Morgan, the LTM par-weighted US high-yield default rate including distressed exchanges decreased to 1.78%, which is an 18-month low. Excluding distressed exchanges, the default rate was 1.16%, compared to the long-term average of 3.40%. The high-yield distressed ratio (bonds trading less than 70% of par value), a leading indicator of defaults, was 5.10% of the index.

Outlook

Over the past month, the outlook for the US economy has significantly weakened as investors are now questioning whether the US Federal Reserve has made a policy mistake by keeping rates restrictive for too long. Almost overnight, due mostly to a soft jobs report and PMI survey, consensus has changed from soft-/no-landing to a much higher likelihood of recession. Markets are now pricing in several rate cuts starting at the next Fed meeting in September, if not sooner. Credit spreads have widened as risk markets have traded off, but are still below historic medians. We are closely monitoring high yield issuers' earnings, free cash flow, and commentary, as well as overall economic conditions, to gauge any potential change in outlook. It is also worth noting that the US presidential election is less than three months away.
