Fund Portrait

The JSS Sustainable Bond - Total Return Global aims to realise medium- to long-term asset growth using a total return approach. To achieve this the sub-fund invests globally (including in emerging markets) in debt securities denominated in any currency.

It will also systematically integrate financially-material ESG aspects throughout the entire investment process, in order to avoid controversial exposures, mitigate ESG risks and harness opportunities.

Investments that are not in USD-denominated assets are largely hedged against the USD. In addition, the sub-fund can invest in securities with non-investment grade rating. However, no investments are permitted in securities with a credit rating lower than BB- (Standard & Poor's) or Ba3 (Moody's).

The Sub-Fund is actively managed without replicating any benchmark. The Sub-Fund is managed without reference to any benchmark.

Review

Bonds put another strong performance in September, with investors pricing more aggressive rate cuts. Our sovereign bonds and curve steepeners (USD, EUR) continued to perform well. Mexico and Poland were among the best performers. The former benefited from lower inflation, weaker growth and a 25 bps rate cut. The latter benefited from a more dovish central bank rhetoric, even though rates were unchanged. US rates performed moderately well, despite a larger-than-expected 50 bps cut by the US Federal Reserve. US economic data continued to blow hot and cold. Norway and Brazil were disappointing. Norges Bank left its rate unchanged and the COPOM hiked its key rate by 25 bps, in a bid to defend their currency. This led to a significant rebound in the Brazilian real. We have cut our allocation to the US curve and increased again our exposure to the Norwegian and Australian curves, as the first rate cuts could come sooner than expected. Not to mention the sound fiscal position of these two countries. Our corporate bonds did not generate any spread gains during the month, but continued to enjoy a decent carry.

Outlook

Economic indicators are pointing to a soft landing. We believe that US inflation is skewed to the downside, helped by the expected fall in rents. We remain bullish on rates. Carry remains attractive, and the easing of monetary policy and the geopolitical risk should sustain the positive momentum. However, we are selective about curves and duration positioning. We have reduced our exposure to the US curve, as the rate cuts currently priced in are ahead of economic data. We are concentrating on maturities of 3 to 8 years, and keeping our curve steepener despite its strong performance since June. Several curves lagged behind and did not follow the US path. These include Australia, Norway and England, whose Central Banks have kept rates unchanged despite solid progress on inflation. These curves are increasingly attractive, as the pivot point is yet to come. Many economic indicators are already in line with their central banks' targets, which should allow them to turn less hawkish. The potential for catching up with the US is significant. Our view of credit remains unchanged: fundamentally sound but very expensive.
