Market environment, performance analysis and portfolio activity

After most global equity indices gained ground in September, they took a breather in October. The third-quarter corporate reports and immediate outlooks have been rather subdued so far. Additionally, interest rates have risen significantly over the course of the month, negatively impacting stock valuations. Moreover, uncertainties regarding the upcoming US elections likely also led to profit-taking. The SPI index again lost value in October, giving up a significant portion of its positive performance for the year.

The relative monthly performance was positively impacted by overweighted Sandoz, Burckhardt Compression and Galderma as well as by underweighted SoftwareOne and ams Osram. Negatively affected was the relative performance by overweighted Tecan, Sika and Daetwyler as well as by underweighted Accelleron and Schindler. In October, we increased our holdings in Tecan and Sonova while reducing our positions in Burckhardt Compression and Julius Baer. Aryzta was newly added to the portfolio.
