Market Comment

The outcome of the US election exacerbated volatility in fixed income markets. US dollar bond yields spiked before retreating as investors welcomed the selection of Wall Street veteran Scott Bessent as Treasury Secretary. As expected, the Federal Reserve cut its key interest rate by 0.25% in early November and signaled the potential for further monetary easing in the coming months, subject to continued disinflationary pressures. By the end of November, US government and corporate bonds had recovered some of the losses suffered in October.

High Yield corporate bonds benefited from a slight compression in credit spreads that was obvious for US issuers. In Europe, euro bond yields fell markedly in reaction to a worrying deterioration in business climate. The ECB's Governing Council did not meet in November, but it is widely expected to cut interest further in December to continue doing so in 2025.

The fund recorded a net performance of +0.65% (ICE index: +0.58% and liquid index: +0.51%). In November, the portfolio was mainly driven in absolute terms by consumer non-cyclical, industrial and basic materials. Within the consumer non-cyclical sector, Hertz and Bayer were the main contributors. For their part, Selecta Group, Avertis and Brightline contributed positively in the industrial sector. In relative terms, the portfolio outperformed the ICE index with a positive relative contribution in consumer non-cyclical, industrial and basic materials sectors. A good selection of securities with Telecom Italia and Millenium Escrow contributed with 2 bps, while the absence in the portfolio of Selecta Group that recorded a large drawdown brought 1 bp of the relative performance. On the other hand, the poor performance Alice and Standard Profil Automotive contributed negatively with an overall -4 bps. At the geographical level, as in October, we observed the positive relative contribution of the US bonds.

The trading activity during the month of October was quiet. We operated 16 trades, and we were subject to 14 corporate actions. Concerning the changes in the HY universe, the number of issues remained stable (3232 issues in October and 3240 in November). Regarding the new entries, we can mention the new issues from Africell, Elucian Holdings and PHH Escrow. On the other side, Codere Finance, Elis and Marks & Spencer left the universe due to rating reasons (the last two were upgraded to Investment Grade). At the portfolio level, adjustments will be performed to increase the credit risk especially on the energy, industrial and consumer cyclical sectors.
