The sub-fund uses a bottom-up research driven framework, and we integrate our ESG investing approach throughout the investment process. The Sub-Fund is actively managed without replicating any benchmark. However, the Sub-Fund is managed with reference to ICE BofA Global High Yield Index USD hedged (the "Benchmark").

Review

With the US Federal Reserve (Fed) signalling a slower rate-cut trajectory in the face of fiscal and political uncertainty under the upcoming Trump administration, rates increased sharply through December. Against this backdrop, credit spreads had a healthy mini-correction, widening around 25bps from mid-December into year-end. The technical setup remained strong and defaults benign. This is in some contrast to the leveraged loans market, which saw record supply into year-end and significantly higher default rates versus high yield. The index declined 2% in December, which the fund outperformed by 0.3%. Drivers for the outperformance were some distressed names such as Embarq and Telesat, as well as the significant overweight in euro high yields versus US high yields.

Outlook

With all-in yields back to around 7.2%, investors still get an attractive compensation, given that most of the maturity walls have been addressed and inflows into the asset class keep spreads in check, while credit metrics look sound for most issuers, softening moderately from very strong levels. The election of Trump as US president has unleashed some animal spirits but also uncertainties and more information is needed before the path for the economy going forward will become clearer. We remain cautious as regards the weakest capital structures as they would need a much stronger economy, in addition to deep cuts, but continue to favour non-distressed higher-yielding names into what is a seasonally very attractive period.
