

JOHCM Asia ex Japan Small and Mid Cap Fund

Fund overview

- Objective: to generate long-term capital growth through active management of a portfolio of Asian (excluding Japanese) equities (stocks with a market capitalisation of typically less than USD4 billion)
- Singapore-based Senior Fund Manager manager Cho-Yu Kooi and her team primarily focus on Asian small and medium-sized companies with sustainable, long-term quality growth characteristics
- These are businesses that can grow over economic and liquidity cycles and which generate high returns on the financial capital that they employ

The value of an investment and the income from it can fall as well as rise as a result of market and currency fluctuations and you may not get back the amount originally invested. Investing in companies in emerging markets involves higher risk than investing in established economies or securities markets. Emerging Markets may have less stable legal and political systems, which could affect the safe-keeping or value of assets. The Fund's investment include shares in small-cap companies and these tend to be traded less frequently and in lower volumes than larger companies making them potentially less liquid and more volatile. We recommend that you read the Prospectus and Key Investor Information Document available from the address overleaf or from our website.

Fund manager's commentary

- Asian equities rallied to close on a high note in December.
- The Fund underperformed in December as several of our consumer names in China/Hong Kong, Indonesia and the Philippines posted lacklustre returns.
- We recently initiated a position in Ping An Healthcare and Technology.

Investment background

Asian equities rallied to close on a high note in December. The key driver was the announcement that the US and China have reached an agreement on their 'phase one' trade negotiation. The US will delay indefinitely the new tariffs that were set to take effect on the 15th of December on an additional US$160 billion of Chinese imports. And, for the first time since the trade tensions erupted in July 2018, the tariff on US$120 billion of Chinese imports will be cut from 15% to 7.5%. Adding to the positive sentiment are tentative signs of a recovery in China's growth outlook on the back of a broad-based improvement in November's economic activity indicators.

Fund review

The Fund underperformed in December as several of our consumer names in China/Hong Kong, Indonesia and the Philippines posted lacklustre returns, while the technology sector in Taiwan, Korea and China, where our exposures are less significant, has continued to perform strongly. We are more selective in the technology sector where we favour stocks which will benefit from the structural trend of market share gains from US vendors as China diversifies its technology supply chain to reduce its reliance on the US. We also like those which are geared to the increasing adoption of enterprise software services by the Chinese government and corporates. We took profits on a few of our consumer stocks and deployed the cash in a few of these technology stocks in the last couple of months. We have also initiated a position in Ping An Healthcare and Technology recently which we highlight below.

Ping An Healthcare and Technology (PAHT) operates the largest internet healthcare platform in China, Ping An Good Doctor, with 289 million registered users and 62.7 million average monthly active users in the first half of 2019. The company provides healthcare services such as online medical consultation and prescription, offline medical care referrals, pharmacy services, health check-ups, beauty care, and fitness and wellness services. With an in-house medical team of 1,193 professionals supported by self-developed artificial intelligence technology, PAHT has seen its daily online consultations increase 77% in two years to 656,000 as of H1 2019. It has also built up an extensive nationwide network of healthcare service providers by collaborating with 3,000 hospitals, 1,600 health check-up centres, 1,700 clinics and 32,000 pharmacy stores to enhance its healthcare ecosystem and create customer stickiness on its platform.

Leveraging its parent company's huge customer base (it is the second largest insurance company in China), its strong branding, effective distribution network and user acquisition, PAHT has a head start in monetisation opportunities and scaling up its business. For example, in August 2019, PAHT successfully launched a paid membership programme, Private Doctor, priced at Rmb499/year for the entry level service plan which includes a 24/7 private family doctor and online consultation services, personalised health management with active interactions, and priority pass of offline hospital visits. It signed up Rmb300 million worth of Private Doctor subscriptions on the first day. Furthermore, we expect PAHT to benefit from the Chinese government's increasingly supportive reimbursement policy for online medical consultations. Provincial governments have been tasked with overseeing the reimbursement process. PAHT has secured a reimbursement rate of Rmb20 per online consultation from Jiangsu and Rmb6 for Shandong, and is seeking to engage with other provinces.
