Review

Global inflation data gave its first indications of beginning to slow, whilst GDP data remained resilient, giving further support to markets that western economies would avoid a hard landing following the aggressive interest rate hiking cycle. In terms of further rate rises, the US Fed increased interest rates by another 25bps, followed by the ECB which also raised rates by a further 25bps. For the insurance sector there were no significant headlines. Several insurance companies reported 1H results: Beazley, Scor and Mapfre were all in line with expectations. The Fund deployed recent inflows across multiple names, increasing exposure in particular to the life sector.

Outlook

Twelve Capital expects markets to be sanguine over the coming weeks due to the summer period but expect new issuance to pick up from the sector in September.
