Fund Portrait

The JSS Sustainable Bond - Global High Yield aims to deliver the highest total return. To achieve this, the sub-fund invests globally (including in emerging markets), predominantly in debt instruments issued by countries, organisations and companies that contribute to the creation of a sustainable economy. It will also systematically integrate financially-material ESG aspects throughout the entire investment process, in order to avoid controversial exposures, mitigate ESG risks and harness opportunities, while aiming to achieve an above-average ESG profile. A non-investment grade rating is understood to be a rating lower than BBB- (Standard & Poor's) or Baa3 (Moody's). The sub-fund can invest a small part of its assets in CoCos (contingent convertible bonds), as well as hold liquidity.

Review

While inflation moved closer towards the central banks' target range, the US Federal Reserve and the European Central Bank remained cautious on declaring victory early and continued to hike another 25bps. Against this backdrop, risky assets performed well, with high yield credit spreads tightening to year-to-date lows at the end of July. While the energy sector outperformed on higher oil prices and a steeper curve boosted financials, interest-rate sensitive industries such as tech and utilities underperformed. The fund decreased risk over the course of July and performed in line with the benchmark.

Outlook

Due to the Bank of Japan's tweak in yield curve control, an important anchor for global fixed income is becoming more uncertain which, together with greater US Treasury supply, reinforces the higher-for-longer funding cost narrative. Given that credit metrics, which are still strong for most companies, will weaken going forward, high yield spreads are moderately rich. While technicals are still supportive, we think a slightly defensive positioning is adequate. Accordingly, we are continuing to underweight the lowest credit qualities and distressed names.
