Global fixed income markets posted largely negative returns in October as investors repriced expectations of policy easing by the Federal Reserve. Jobs data came in mostly stronger than expected, while core consumer price index (CPI) and core personal consumption expenditures (PCE) numbers showed that the battle against inflation is not completely over. Treasury yields were up across the curve.

Monthly performance

In October the fund performed negatively with 2.3%. Falling Treasury yields sent total returns into negative territory despite the positive impact from credit, which included tightening spreads and high income.

YTD performance

YTD as of the end of October, the fund has delivered a positive performance of 2.8%. Tighter spreads and high carry since year-end have been the main drivers, despite higher long-end yields.

Performance contributors

Lower credit quality was ahead of higher credit quality in a spread-tightening environment. The short end of the credit curve performed better than the long end as the yield curve steepened. The best-performing sectors were supermarkets, airlines, cable/satellite, media/entertainment and natural gas.

Performance detractors

Higher credit quality underperformed lower credit quality. The worst-performing sectors were health insurance, railroads, pharmaceuticals and restaurants.

Current investment strategy

We maintained our overweight duration in light of recent rate movements. We increased our exposure to high yield, particularly at the front end. We are overweight at the short end and belly of the credit curve.

Risks

Even though the credit quality of the portfolio is investment grade, the default risk is higher with corporate bonds than with government paper. Changes in interest rates have an effect on the value of the portfolio. This requires corresponding risk tolerance and capacity. All investments are subject to market fluctuations. Every fund has specific risks, which may increase considerably in unusual market conditions. The fund can use derivatives, which may result in additional risks (particularly counterparty risk). This Fund may not be appropriate for investors who plan to withdraw their money before the recommended holding period disclosed in the PRIIPs KID, if available for this share class.

Please note that additional fees (e.g. entry or exit fees) may be charged. Please refer to your financial adviser for more details. Investors should read the Key Information Document, Prospectus and any applicable local offering document prior to investing and to get complete information of the risks. Investors are acquiring units or shares in a fund, and not in a given underlying asset such as building or shares of a company.
