

UBS Floating Rate Income Bond Fund USD

Performance Review

UBS (Lux) Bond SICAV - Floating Rate Income (USD) P-acc

Global fixed income markets posted positive returns in February on the back of lower rates, with the US leading the way. Despite the higher-than-expected inflation print, US Treasury yields slid to their lowest levels of the year during the month, driven by tariff headlines and stagflation fears.

² YTD: year-to-date (since beginning of the year)

Monthly performance

In February the fund performed positively with 0.3%. High carry sent total returns into positive territory. Lower interest rates dragged performance down due to the floating rate nature of the strategy.

YTD performance

YTD as of the end of February, the fund has delivered a positive performance of 1.3%. High carry and tighter spreads in most markets have sent total returns into positive territory. Lower interest rates have dragged performance down due to the floating rate nature of the strategy.

Performance contributors

Credit rated CCC outperformed other credit quality. EUR high yield outperformed US high yield. By industry, diversified financial services, homebuilders & real estate and healthcare were the top performers.

Performance detractors

Credit rated BB underperformed this month. By industry, broadcasting, non-electric utilities and consumer products underperformed on a relative basis.

Current investment strategy

We increased our exposure to credit rated BB, and the portfolio's average rating is now BB-. We added credit default swap index (CDX) exposure in order to adjust our duration positioning.

Risks

The fund's net asset value depends on interest rate and credit spread movements and will be negatively affected should any issuer held in the portfolio default. Depending on the credit quality, default risk is higher with high yield bonds than with investment grade corporate and government bonds. The fund may use derivatives, which involve counterparty risk and higher loss risk versus security investments as the option, future and swap markets are volatile. The fund may invest in emerging markets, which are at an early stage of development and typically involve high price volatility, lower market transparency, regulatory hurdles, corporate governance, political and social challenges, etc. All investments are subject to market fluctuations. Every fund has specific risks, which may increase considerably in unusual market conditions. This Fund may not be appropriate for investors who plan to withdraw their money before the recommended holding period disclosed in the PRIIPs KID, if available for this share class.
