China equities showed resilience by finishing the year with positive returns after a volatile 2024.

Monthly performance

In December the fund performed positively with 3.0%. The China market traded within a narrow range in December, with information technology the key outperforming sector on the month.

YTD performance

YTD as of the end of December, the fund has delivered a positive performance of 7.6%. In 2024, market performance was heavily skewed by the sudden policy pivot in September, which set high expectations for further stimulus. In addition, investors closely monitored geopolitical events and prospective tariff trajectories under the incoming US administration.

Performance contributors

Positions in communication services and financials gained the most over the year. Tencent and China Merchants Bank were the main contributors, aided by a stable business in each case and a focus on shareholder returns via buybacks and dividend payouts.

Performance detractors

Meanwhile, healthcare positions detracted from performance. In particular, CSPC Pharmaceutical faced pressure from volume-based procurement (VBP). The company also expects certain delays for in-hospital sales of its new products due to the regulatory environment in China and the anti-corruption campaign. It therefore revised down its FY24 sales target for innovative products.

Current investment strategy

As we look ahead to 2025, geopolitical tensions remain a significant source of uncertainty. President-elect Donald Trump has stoked unpredictability further regarding US policy towards China. Domestically, a clear pro-growth policy pivot should help to improve the growth outlook alongside gradual price momentum.
