European equities surged to an all-time high, with defence stocks seeing significant gains fuelled by the anticipated ceasefire and increased fiscal spending on defence. Growing concern that the US economy may finally experience a slowdown after two years of remarkable growth also contributed to the underperformance by the US.

Monthly performance

In February the fund performed positively with 3.2%. The fund slightly lagged European equity markets in February as negative performance within the industrials sector offset positive contributions from consumer staples, financials and materials.

YTD performance

YTD as of the end of February, the fund has delivered a positive performance of 9.6%. The fund is lagging behind European equity markets; our quality-tilted portfolio has underperformed as expectations for growth have been reined in following the announcement of Trump's tariff policies, resulting in value stocks outperforming.

Performance contributors

We benefited significantly from our holdings in Leonardo and BAE Systems, two defence stocks which rallied as European leaders considered materially ramping up defence spending after the Trump administration indicated it may reduce military support for Ukraine. Our thesis on the Nestle turnaround following the change of CEO also started to play out, with the stock performing positively on robust Q4 results.

Performance detractors

Wolters Kluwer, an information services company, sold off following news that its longstanding CEO, Nancy McKinstry, will be retiring after more than 20 years at the helm. This is despite a one-year handover and the chosen successor, Stacey Caywood, having worked at Wolters since 1992.

Current investment strategy

2024 was a year characterised by considerable political change; we expect volatility to remain heightened as the world watches the unfolding policy changes and considers their effects. While we are macro-aware, we are not macro-driven, using pair trades to reduce factor risk and increase our stock-specific risk. Our preference for high-quality companies with strong management teams and healthy balance sheets should position us well amidst the economic uncertainty.
