

UBS German High Dividend Sustainable Equity Fund EUR

Performance Review

UBS (Lux) Equity SICAV - German High Dividend Sustainable (EUR) (CHF hedged) P-acc

Market performance was positive in Germany amid investor hopes that the snap election in February will ease the political paralysis.

Monthly performance

In November the fund performed positively with 0.7%. The fund underperformed the German equity market in November. Stock selection was the main driver of returns, with positive effects from selection in healthcare and communication services, while selection in industrials and materials detracted.

YTD performance

YTD as of the end of November, the fund has delivered a positive performance of 10.5%. In the year to date, the fund has trended in line with the strong performance of the German equity market. While stock selection in healthcare and industrials has detracted, stock selection in utilities and communication services has contributed positively.

Performance contributors

The overweight positions in MTU Aero Engines and Deutsche Telekom boosted performance. MTU Aero Engines continued to perform strongly on the basis of increased targets for 2024 and in anticipation of robust guidance for 2025. Deutsche Telekom reported strong Q3 results that exceeded expectations.

Performance detractors

The overweight positions in Evonik and Merck KGaA had a negative effect. While Evonik issued Q3 results that were in line with expectations, its 2024 guidance was not raised, implying a 1% reduction in expectations for Q4. News from Merck KGaA was marginally positive and the stock's weakness was in line with that of other healthcare companies in November.

Current investment strategy

While keeping sustainability criteria in mind, we are constantly looking for investment opportunities in German stocks with high dividends and attractive valuations. In our view, the combination of high yield and the potential for share price appreciation will generate value for investors.
