Asian equities fell on concerns surrounding how a Trump win would impact the markets. The main immediate concerns were potential tariff hikes of up to 60% on Chinese exports and 10-20% on the rest of the world. The Philippines and Indonesia fell the most. Sector-wise, materials, consumer discretionary and real estate posted the sharpest declines.

Monthly performance

In November the fund performed negatively with 5.5%. In terms of sectors, information technology and financials were key detractors, while the materials sector contributed the most. In terms of markets, Korea and China were key detractors, while Malaysia contributed.

YTD performance

YTD as of the end of November, the fund has delivered a positive performance of 2.6%. Sector-wise, information technology, consumer discretionary and financials have detracted the most, while materials and industrials have been the biggest contributors. In terms of markets, China, Korea and India have been key detractors, while Malaysia has contributed.

Performance contributors

HDFC Bank contributed the most in November as the bank outpaced the industry in terms of deposit growth. The company remains a premier private bank and its merger with HDFC Ltd should be beneficial, with improved market penetration and cross-selling.

Performance detractors

Samsung Electronics detracted the most in November due to concerns about the memory cycle, as well as heightened competition from Chinese tech companies in the lower-end dynamic random access memory (DRAM) segment.

Current investment strategy

We have increased our exposure to China since the policy pivot, as we believe there is merit to the government's more supportive tone. While we have reduced our overweight in IT to manage potential softness in the tech cycle, we believe the sector remains one of the best in the Asian universe in terms of growth fundamentals, global competitiveness and prospects for improving total shareholder returns.
