

UBS Digital Transformation Dynamic Equity Fund USD

Performance Review

UBS (Lux) Key Selection SICAV - Digital Transformation Dynamic (USD) Q-acc

Unsurprisingly, Donald Trump's decisive victory in the US presidential election in combination with a red sweep was the dominant market driver in November. Due to the prospect of potentially lower taxes and lighter regulation, US equities outperformed other regional markets, which face increased tariff risk.

Monthly performance

In November the fund performed positively with 5.7%. Stock selection was positive within information technology and financials, while the negative selection in consumer discretionary and industrials detracted. In terms of sector allocation, our positioning in healthcare and materials added value, while our positioning in financials and communication services detracted. The high equity allocation contributed to performance.

YTD performance

YTD as of the end of November, the fund has delivered a positive performance of 26.4%. Growth continues to outperform value, which is a tailwind to performance, as are positive stock selection and sector allocation.

Performance contributors

HubSpot shares rose after the release of strong Q3 results due to robust subscription performance and operating margin expansion, in addition to an increase in full-year guidance. Shopify rallied on the back of its earnings release, as earnings beat expectations thanks to resurgent revenues and improved cost efficiencies.

Performance detractors

Our underweight to Tesla detracted from performance due to the positive sentiment surrounding Trump's election and potential benefits for the carmaker. PDD shares sold off after the company's quarterly report fell short of expectations for the top and bottom lines, as intensified competition continued to weigh on results.

Current investment strategy

We continue to believe we are in the early stages of artificial intelligence and machine learning, of companies creating personalised relationships with their users, and of technology supporting meaningful medical innovation. We have added to selected high-conviction names given the prospect of near-term volatility. The equity allocation remains "high".
